Sectional Character of the U. S. Supreme Court.

The sectional character of the U. S. Supreme Court is no new subject. With a large majority of the population and business of the Union, the free states are in a minority of circuits and the judges on the bench. This fact is known to every newspaper reader, but some facts recently stated by Mr. Ashley, of Ohio, in a speech in congress, may be new to many. By the act originally creating that court, that court was made to consist of one chief justice and five associates. In 1802, six circuits were formed, and the judges equally divided between the north and south. In 1807, Tennessee, Kentucky and Ohio were created a new circuit, and in 1817, two more new circuits were formed, leaving the court as now constituted, and giving the south five of the nine circuit judges, Chief Justice Taney, a southern man, at its head.

There is, however, not only this inequality in representation, but the geographical division of the circuits is worthy of notice. The ninth circuit, Judge Daniels', is composed of the states of Arkansas and Mississippi, while the 7th, Judge McLean's, consists of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan. The ninth circuit contains little, if any, over half a million of white inhabitants, while Justice McLean's contains over six millions.

Here is another comparison: The second circuit, Judge Nelson's, is composed of the states of New York, Connecticut and Vermont, and contains over five millions of freemen; while the fifth circuit, Judge Campbell's, is composed of the states of Louisiana and Alabama, and has but little over a million of white inhabitants.

Such a discrepancy, where there is a representation of some kind, is had enough; but there are five free states without any representation at all. Since the organization of the eighth and ninth circuits, the states of Iowa, Wisconsin, California, Minnesota and Oregon have been admitted into the Union; and although these states contain a population and have an amount of judicial business equal at least to one-third of those of the entire fifteen slave states, they are turned off with a district court, the nature of which is pretty well known to at least every man in Wisconsin who is familiar with Judge Miller's "institution."

These illustrations have reference more particularly to population and representation. Mr. Ashley has carried his investigations a little further and contrasts the number of cases on the calendar of each circuit, and the amount of labor imposed on the several judges. He finds that the whole number of cases on the docket of the five southern circuits, January 1st, 1856, was 1,576—those in Judge McLean's circuit alone, 1,181; and that the cases added to the former during 1856 was 1,123, while those added to Judge McLean's circuit the same year was 2,037. It is not probable that the disproportion in favor of the southern judges has lessened since 1856.

One of the first reforms a republican rule in the nation would institute would be a re-organization of this court. As it now acts, it is a political as well as a legal tribunal of last resort. Either its political feature should be taken from it, or it should fairly represent the population and sentiment of the whole Union. A republican president could, with the consent of the senate, fill any vacancy that might occur among the judges; but for a re-arrangement of the circuits, and the relief of the new states from the infliction of a district court by annexation to a circuit, a republican majority in both houses of congress, as well as a republican president, is necessary, and it would be well for every citizen who desires this reform accomplished to vote to that end at the next election.

On June 28, 1860, the reception at Binghamton, N. Y., of the news of Breckenridge and Lane's nomination, a salute of one hundred guns was fired by the national democracy, accompanied with the ringing of bells, the letting off of fire works, and other demonstrations of rejoicing.

Binghamton is the residence of ex-senator Dickinson, the leader of the New York "Hards," and this demonstration is probably significant of the action of that portion of the democracy of the state.

Douglas.—Douglas dodged the vote on Jeff Davis' resolutions, the Homestead bill, and the tariff, by making it convenient to be absent when the votes were taken.

The Judge's Charge to the Jury.

The following is the charge of Judge Noggle to the jury on the trial of Ogdun Barrett at the present term of the circuit court:

Gentlemen:—The defendant stands charged with a high crime committed against the law of the land, and the question of his guilt or innocence is now about to be submitted to you.

It is alleged in the indictment that on the first day of January, A. D. 1859, at the town of Magnolia, in this county of Rock, the defendant discharged at the witness, George Howard, a pistol loaded with powder and ball, with intent feloniously, wilfully and of his malice aforethought, to kill and murder the said George Howard.

This charge the defendant meets by the plea of not guilty, and sets up and relies upon the plea of insanity as a further defense.

The prosecution therefore must satisfy you by the evidence upon the trial, that the criminal act charged in the indictment was committed by the defendant as charged, or you should acquit him.

The discharge of the pistol as charged, and the discharge of that pistol at the said George Howard, at the time and place as stated in the indictment, seems not to be disputed in this case; therefore, from the labor of investigating and settling the truth of this much of the charge made by the prosecution, the jury are fully relieved. Neither is there any question made that a cause of difference amounting to a quarrel really existed between the defendant and the witness, Howard, on the first day of January, 1859; and that after the causes of difference fully came to the knowledge of the defendant, he strongly and seriously excepted to the position in which the witness, Howard, had placed him in the news paper controversy.

Again, there is no dispute upon the fact that after the defendant understood the reply to his newspaper correspondence, he procured the pistol at his father's, and I am not aware that there is any dispute that he obtained the loaded pistol of McCargue after he so understood the controversy.

No question is raised upon or contradicted offered to these facts, sworn to by so many witnesses, and that the defendant on the same day he procured the pistols, met the witness, Howard, and brought him to an account for publishing the article which appeared in the Janesville Gazette of the previous day.

It is claimed by the prosecution that the feeling exhibited by the defendant, and his determined resentment for the injury he felt on account of the article in the Gazette, were rational and natural, and just such as we might reasonably expect from a spirited, bright and sensible man who had manliness enough to resent an injury; that the defendant prepared or caused to be prepared, a written retraction, and presented this paper to the witness, Howard, and demanded of him his signature thereto for the purpose of a public retraction, that the reputation of the defendant might be cleared of the stain brought upon it by making public the article referred to. On the refusal of Howard to place his name to a written retraction, the defendant in earnest declared that he "would make him," and drew and leveled at the body of Howard a revolver, guiding, directing and steering his aim until he fancied it was settled upon his (Howard's) person, and then fired one barrel, and hastily and rapidly prepared to discharge a second, and was only prevented by the instant interference and efficient aid from the bystanders, which doubtless alone saves the defendant to-day from being on trial for murder.

It is also insisted by the prosecution that this article in the Day Book is the work of a sound and a strong mind; that the defendant's appreciation of the meaning and effect of the Gazette's article is correct and sensible; that the careful, deliberate and ingeniously written retraction which he presented to Howard for his signature is the work of a mind possessing full power and capacity, and a wonderful production for an irresponsible mind.

When the testimony for the prosecution closed, the case for the prosecution was fully made out, and had the jury been required to take the case at that stage, a verdict of guilty must have followed. Consequently, the case stands fully made out by the state, and your verdict should be guilty, unless the jury are satisfied by the evidence given upon the stand, beyond a reasonable doubt, that the defendant is not guilty on account of his insanity.

Every man must be presumed to be innocent until the contrary is proved, and if there be reasonable doubt as to the defendant's guilt, the jury are to give him the benefit of such doubt. "Such doubt, however, should be actual and substantial, not mere possibility or speculation;" "It is not mere possible doubt" because everything depending upon evidence relating to the facts of this life is open to some possible or imaginary doubt." If after the entire comparison and consideration of all the evidence, the jury cannot say that they feel an abiding conviction, to a moral certainty, that the defendant is guilty, he should be acquitted.

In considering the main point in the defense in this case—that of insanity—the jury should bear in mind that the law presumes a man to be sane until the contrary is proved. Hence the evidence of the prisoner's insanity, at the time of committing the act, ought to be clear and satisfactory. If the evidence leaves it only a doubtful question, the presumption of the law prevails in favor of the sanity of the prisoner; in such case the law holds the prisoner responsible for his actions. But if the probability of his being insane at the time is, from the evidence in the case, beyond strong, and but a slight doubt of it, then the jury should find that the defendant was insane, and should acquit. If the defense relied upon by the defendant has been made out by a clear and satisfactory preponderance of evidence, the defendant should be acquitted.

Insanity, Lunacy, Amentia or Menia are all well understood to destroy the mental faculties and to take away all responsibility. But it is not necessary that the jury should require the defense to establish either one of these difficulties. The jury must find that at the time of the shooting the defendant was a person of intelligence and capacity enough to have a criminal intent and purpose, without which he is not responsible, and if his reason and mental powers were either so deficient that he had no will, no conscience or mental power he is not a responsible moral agent, and ought not to be punished for a criminal act.

Partial insanity, monomania, insane delusion or moral insanity may exist to such a degree as to so far destroy the reason and mental faculties, or to such a degree as to render those faculties so deficient that the defendant was not conscious of what he was doing at the time he fired the pistol, and is not responsible for the act and should be acquitted.

Does the evidence satisfy you that partial insanity existed at the time of the shooting, to such an extent as to becloud and weaken the mind of the defendant as to render him incapable of remembering, reasoning and judging, or that his mind was so perverted by insane delusion that he acted under false impressions and influences? If the evidence does so satisfy you, the accused should be acquitted.

The mind may become dull, passive, beclouded and weakened, but if he is still capable of remembering, reasoning and judging, and is reasonably free from false impressions and delusions he should be held to be a responsible moral agent, liable for his criminal acts.

To enable the jury to apply such tests as will enable them to arrive at the truth in relation to the defense relied upon in this case, I will refer to some of such as have been approvingly referred to and commented upon by learned jurists upon the trial of criminal cases where the insanity of the defendant has been interposed.

Persons may be afflicted with monomania that may entirely destroy their capacity on some given subject, and so far as that particular subject is concerned they may be so wild and deluded that they would do nothing rational relating to such subject, whether it be the subject of religion, politics, spiritualism, mechanism or science, and any act they might do in prosecuting their wild and deluded notions in relation to the particular subject upon which they are monomaniacal would be excusable, because upon that particular subject the intellectual power to act and judge is for the time so obliterated that they have no conscience, no will to remember, reason to judge correctly in relation to that particular matter, and are not responsible or punishable for a criminal act resulting from such delusion.

Yet during all the time they may be perfectly sound and rational upon all other subjects, and being sound and rational on all other subjects, capable of remembering, reasoning and judging correctly upon and in relation to all such other matters, they are responsible for their acts done within the bounds of rationality, and are punishable for crimes committed in the possession of a mind capable of remembering, reasoning and judging correctly of the nature and character of such acts.

One of the evidences that the prisoner would be entitled to the benefits of this defense would be tested by ascertaining whether he acted just as a desperate, sane man would be likely to act under the same circumstances. Was he at the time laboring under a real and firm belief of some fact not true in itself, but which, if it were true, would excuse the act? as if he had been acting under the belief that Howard was about to take his life, or the life of his family or friends, or do him or them some great bodily harm?

Sometimes, persons rational on all other subjects, become deluded into the opinion that they are commanded by God to do some particular act, and they act under the deluded but sincere belief that what they are doing is under the command of a superior power, which supercedes all human and natural law. Such a delusion is insanity, and should acquit. Many other illustrations might be used to show you the true workings of insanity, but those already given are amply sufficient to try the acts and conduct of the defendant for the purpose of deciding whether the defendant acted under a correct or incorrect impression; whether he acted understandingly and correctly, knowing and understanding what Howard had done and what he was doing, and the effect and object of his acts,—the defendant knowing at this time that what he was doing was wrong. If he did understand, remember, reason and judge correctly of the whole affair between himself and Howard, and in relation to matters generally,—and if his whole action was in harmony with good memory, sound reason and correct judgment in arranging his plans to make Howard retract the objectionable communication, the defendant ought not to be excused for making the dangerous and violent attack upon the life of a peaceable human being.

To constitute a complete defense, insanity, if partial or is merely monomania, must be of such a degree as to deprive the accused of the guide of reason in regard to the act with which he is charged, and of the knowledge that he was doing wrong in committing it. On the contrary, if you are satisfied from the evidence that the prisoner was conscious of what he was doing, and that he was doing wrong, his defense must fail.

Great ingenuity, capacity and skill have been displayed upon the trial of this case. The defendant has been ably defended, great anxiety and zeal have been manifested in his behalf by his relatives and friends as well as by his able counsel, all which is commendable and has been honorably conducted. If from the evidence and all the proper efforts that have been made in this case on the part of the defendant, the jury are satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant is innocent, the verdict should be "Not Guilty" because the humane policy of our law forbids that a weak and irreponsible human being should be held responsible for his acts. The object and administration of the law, as well as the desire and aim of society, should be elevated higher and far above seeking revenge for injuries either real or imaginary, or even the remotest wish or desire to punish or chastise an unintelligent and irresponsible defendant.

On the other hand no amount of effort, ingenuity, ability or zeal should be in the least deterred from finding the defendant guilty, if in your judgment he has failed to make out his defense. If he is really guilty of the offense charged, the dignity of the law as well as the good of society, demand his conviction; and father and mother, brothers and sisters, wife and children, for their own safety and the safety of the community in which they live, hard and cruel as it may seem, should not murmur, but ought to submit cheerfully to a just administration of the law. Yet in conclusion, gentlemen, let me again remind you that if you are not satisfied beyond all reasonable doubt, that the defendant is guilty as charged, it is your imperative duty to acquit him, for if any such doubt exists in your minds the prisoner is entitled to the benefit of that doubt.

The following is the retraction offered to Mr. Howard for his signature, which Mr. H. refused to sign:

To all whom it may concern: That I, George Howard, am the author of a libelous and slanderous letter published in the Gazette of the 31st of December, at Janesville. Instead of the said Ogdun Barrett's leaving his family in destitute circumstances, as I alleged, he left them living in a house owned by his brother, with sufficient means to enable him to continue living there until the aforementioned Ogdun Barrett should return from California. Also he left his family with supplies sufficient to last them one year, including a good cow; also, that it was here known that he full sick immediately on his arrival in Oregon and remained so, unable to labor for the first year after his arrival in Oregon; also, that since his arrival he has offered to deliver up the house to the trustees, but that he now owns nearly one half of said house, with the understanding that he is to buy out the shareholders; also, that my object in writing said letter grew out of a hatred to said Ogdun Barrett for writing a letter, as published in the New York Day Book, and that my tissue of misrepresentations are libelous and need the foregoing explanations.

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.

The difficulties under which the democratic party is to labor, in consequence of the Baltimore split, are becoming clearly apparent in this city, where the feeling between the officeholders and non-officeholders is very bitter. Last evening the city executive committee held a meeting to take action for ratification meeting, when a resolution was adopted, to the effect that the Baltimore split, which ticket should be ratified. The committee immediately adjourned without coming to a settlement. This evening the Douglas portion of the committee held a meeting under a call signed by eight of the members. Ten of the twenty-four members of the committee were present and agreed to hold a mass meeting on Saturday to ratify the Douglas ticket. The chairman of the committee publishes a card calling for the call of the Baltimore irregular. A call for a mass meeting on Monday night to ratify the nominations of Breckenridge and Lane will be published in the morning papers, promising Senators Fitzpatrick and Benjamin, and Messrs. Cushing and Barnett as speakers. The call is unsigned.

The Democratic state committee will meet on Monday, when the preference of the electors will be obtained. A proposition strongy in favor of Breckenridge and Lane, is run Douglas and Breckenridge on a united electoral ticket, the electors pledged to fairly represent the ratio vote in the college. The electors, previous to nominations were understood to prefer Mr. Breckenridge as the regular nominee, but their present preferences are believed to be in favor of the nominee of the majority of the regular convention.

A percussion cap factory at Govanus, Brooklyn, was destroyed by an explosion yesterday, only one man in the building and he was not much injured, though thrown a distance of 25 feet.

The steamships Grenada and Havana 23d and Matamoros from Matanzas 23d have arrived. There is no news of interest.

SANDY HOOK, June 28—1030 A. M. The steamship Great Eastern came into the light ship this 7:30 A. M. She left the needles at 10 A. M. on the 17th.

With the exception of two days she experienced fine weather. She has 42 passengers, including Geo. Wilkes of Wilkes of the Times, and several of the directors of the company. She steamed the Atlantic passage, ranging from 23d to 33d miles per twenty-four hours. Her engines were not stopped until she was off George's Shoal for soundings. She came in a route south east direct to the light ship, where she was boarded by our ship news collector.

On reaching the light ship she was received by Capt. Osogrove with a salute and the display of colors, and as the mist cleared away, all the vessels in sight set their bunting and cheered her. She now lies near the bar, and will not pass over until 3 P. M. She is drawing 27 feet of water, and will be trimmed to an even keel before crossing.

NEW YORK, June 27.

The leading politicians of the two democratic organizations in this state have been in consultation in this city yesterday and to-day. Mayor Wood and Dean Richmond have concluded an arrangement. The former is to come out in support of Mr. Douglas, in consideration of which Messrs. Richmond and Cagger are to place him at the head of their electoral ticket. Gideon J. Tucker, John A. Green and others have refused to become a party to any bargain with Messrs. Richmond and Cagger, and have determined to call a state convention to nominate a Breckenridge and Lane electoral ticket. The state committee, of which Green is chairman, is called to meet at Syracuse on the 3d of July. Mayor Wood will, without doubt, immediately proclaim for Douglas. The Mozart Hall city committee will soon meet to decide on its course, when a division is anticipated among its members.

CORVOS, N. H., June 28.

The Douglas demonstration last night was the most active and enthusiastic ever witnessed here. Rumford Hall was overflowed early in the evening, and the masses adjourned to the state house square. The speaking was kept up till a late hour, and the fire of cannon was continued till daylight.

The Excursion.—The Chrysal Lake excursionists left this morning at the appointed hour. The train consisted of 10 passenger, 2 provision and 1 baggage car. A large and happy party will have a pleasant time if the weather is favorable.

Horse Stolen.—A three year old, light bay mare colt, 15 hands high, a star in the forehead, some white on both hind feet, long foretop, switch tail and long mane, was stolen from Mr. Charles K. Bennett, in the town of Centre, last night. Mr. Bennett offers a reward of $25 for the arrest of the thief and recovery of the colt, or a liberal reward for the recovery of the colt alone.

The visit of the Japanese embassy to this country has been quite an expensive amusement. Aside from the steam frigate put at their service each way, government paid $14,000 to maintain them at Washington. Baltimore paid $2,500 for one day's visit there, Philadelphia $15,000 for the round trip, and the bills in New York will amount to $20,000, swelling the whole expense to $51,500.

Add to this the expense of telegraphing and putting in type the reports of their movements; estimate at a reasonable value the time spent in reading the descriptions of enthusiastic reporters; count in all the incidents connected with the attentions they have received, and the city of Yeddo, it sold at auction, would hardly pay the cost of their visit. Surely, Americans are richly deserving all the ridicule sensible foreigners heap upon them for their propensity to "honorez" everything foreign that comes in their way.

Members of the Bower City Base Ball Club are requested to meet on this, Thursday, evening, at their usual place at 8 o'clock. Let every member be in attendance.

Arrival of the Great Eastern.—The telegraph announces the arrival of the Great Eastern, and sends us a batch of staff wire in no manner to publish, and which is probably a precursor to a repetition of the nuisance of the Japanese embassy. When the agent of the associated press who prepares these reports for publication dies, he ought to have a monument of mouldy rollers erected to his memory by his victims of the newspaper press.

Remembrance.—A very fine bouquet, the gift of a fair young lady, and the product of the flower garden of Major Taylor, has graced our office all day. It is arranged with much taste, but a suspicious looking "achelor's" button suggests the idea whether it was not intended for one of "the boys" at the editorial office of the editor at his table.

Western Emigration.—A good servant girl, one that understands cooking, and can do all kinds of house work. Good recommendation will be required.

Stating School Postponed.—The weekly meeting of the singing school connected with Christ Church will be postponed this week, on account of the absence of many of the singers.

A Snow Cover.—The Madison Argus is just "deliberating" whether it will support Douglas or Breckinridge. Go in for the latter, neighbor; Pump Carpenter is on the other side, and your day of grace with "Dug" is already slanted away. The Kentuckian, as between him and the "little giant," carries the winning banner.

Predecessor Successors.—The friends of Breckinridge are disputing hard with the partisans of Douglas which shall make the most noise and display the most zeal. So far it is about an even thing; even in Chicago, 123 guns were fired by the adherents of the speeding candidates.

Producers of Railroad Mortgages.—The Berlin News says that Newcomb Cleveland, a large owner of railroad farm mortgages, is in that city and has announced his determination to immediately commence foreclosure suits against the mortgagors.

Fruit.—The Chicago Journal says pears, plums, peaches, cherries and huckleberries are fast coming into market, but are held at high prices. Peaches from Michigan, a size of a gooseberry, bring sixty cents a dozen.

High School.—The closing exercises of the high school will take place to-morrow, June 29, at the high school building, commencing at 2 o'clock P. M. The public are invited to attend.

Breckinridge in Chicago.—The Chicago Tribune of this morning says—"We have information from a reliable source that the Chicago Herald, the ablest and fairest of the democratic papers of the north-west, will take ground in a few days for Breckinridge and Lane. Its principal proprietor, C. H. McCormick, Esq., was at Baltimore in close communication with Mr. Breckinridge's friends; and we are not mistaken when we say that he will espouse their cause."

A Whisky Murder.—The Monroe Sentinel of Wednesday says—"We learn that two Norwegians living in the town of York had an altercation on Sunday morning, during which one struck the other with a knife in the groin, cutting him so badly that he died in five minutes. Whisky."

Dows East.—In Portland, Maine, they have an office styled the "Truant Officer," whose duty as his name indicates, is to arrest all truants from the school hours, and return them to their duties. The arrangement is said to work remarkably well, much to the satisfaction of parents, and also to the residents of the town, who like quiet and order. In one of the schools the attendance among the boys has increased about twelve per cent, since the creation of the new office.

Genevieve Depot, Waukesha county, Wis., is the name of a new Postoffice.

ALL SORTS OF PARAGRAPHS.

The Washington Constitution says that "Old Abe" does not know enough "to be nice and lasty in his apparel. He understands perfectly well how to give the Democracy a real good dressing next November, though."

One John W. Jones has been sent to prison for marrying two wives, and excused himself by saying that when he had one she fought him, but when he got two they fought each other.

Evil Habits.—He who has struck his colors to the power of an evil habit, has surrendered himself to an enemy bound by no articles of faith, and from whom he can expect only the vilest treatment.

The Chinese picture of ambition is "a mandarin trying to catch a comet by putting salt on its tail."

Did the man who plowed the sea, and afterwards planted his field on his native soil, ever harvest the crops?

The Japanese astronomical day is divided into twelve instead of twenty-four hours. These are designated as follows: Midnight, rat time; two o'clock, cow time; four o'clock, tiger time; six o'clock, rabbit time; eight o'clock, dragon time; ten o'clock, snake time; noon, horse time; afternoon, two o'clock, sheep time; four o'clock, monkey time; six o'clock, chicken time; eight o'clock, dog time; ten o'clock, hog time.

Telegram to the Pacific.—President Buchanan has signed the Overland Telegraph bill. It is therefore, a law, and proposals will soon be out for building the line.

Ohio.—The Cleveland Democrat says, "from the returns already in, it is feared that the population of Ohio, instead of advancing has slightly decreased within the last ten years by emigration or otherwise."

Accident to Walter D. McIsaac.—The Central (Wausau, Marathon county) Wisconsin, of the 23d, gives the particulars of a severe accident. It says:

Just as we are going to press we learn that a most lamentable casualty has happened to our respected townsman, Walter D. McIsaac. While superintending the operation of his mill, he had occasion to remove a piece of bark that impeded the work on a rotary saw, then in motion under about half the ordinary head of water; in so doing, his sleeve was caught by the rapidly revolving saw, and his arm pulled down in contact with the teeth, instantly mangle the wrist and hand entirely from the arm, so that it hung by only a shred of skin. It will be necessary to amputate the arm at about three inches above the wrist joint. It is with sorrow that we chronicle this unfortunate occurrence to our distinguished fellow citizen, and bespeak him in his affliction, the sympathy of his many friends in Marathon county and throughout the state.

Reduced.—The freight on lumber by the railroad, has been reduced within the past week from four dollars to three dollars per thousand from Oshkosh to Janesville.

Market for Girls.—Mrs. Swishelm, of the St. Cloud Democrat, says:

"WAXEN.—In St. Cloud, a large supply of raw material for the manufacture of brides. None in the market, and pressing demand. Those having a surplus to dispose of would do well to put up small packages carefully, in straw bonnets, herge veils, crinolines and silk loupes, and consign them to the care of any of our commission merchants."

Life Insurance.

"Those desiring this safe and cheapest protection for their families, can secure it in our Wisconsin company. It has already become, in reality, a state institution, having agents and patrons among the best business men in all the principal towns in the state. It is considered a matter of doubt that life insurance can be conducted as well in Wisconsin as in Connecticut or any other eastern state."

While duty demands that men should insure their lives, it also demands that they should keep their money for investment at home. Confident that our success has been more than equal to that of the most "unprecedented" of our kind, we cordially invite all our citizens to call on the office, and examine the records of Main and Wisconsin streets, and examine for themselves.

S. S. DAGGETT, President.

A. W. KELLON, Secretary.

W. Meers, Pikey & Harlow, produce dealers, and Capt. Geo. S. Dodge, we receive applications for insurance in this home company, and will also be happy to give information as to the condition thereof, to any one desirous of being informed, in Janesville.

SINGING SCHOOL POSTPONED.—The weekly meeting of the singing school connected with Christ Church will be postponed this week, on account of the absence of many of the singers.

A SLOW COACH.—The Madison Argus is yet "deliberating" whether it will support Douglas or Breckenridge.
